OBJETIVO Orientação para o Professor – Inglês – 2ª Série do Ensino Médio – 1º Bimestre

Este caderno é composto por 16 módulos, assim distribuídos:
5 módulos de gramática e 11 módulos de texto.

Iniciamos a parte gramatical com o estudo dos verbos auxiliares Do, Does e Did.

O professor deve estabelecer a diferença entre os tempos do presente e do passado.

Exemplificando:

He reads good books every year.

Fixar o uso do Simple Present Tense

He read good books last year.

Fixar o uso do Simple Past Tense

Outra sugestão que o professor não deve deixar de propor nas aulas de tempos verbais é uma leitura constante dos verbos irregulares da tabela.

Não deixe de comentar as seguintes estruturas:

1) He'd better go out now. (had better)

2) She'd rather drink coffee. (would rather)

3) Let's go for a walk, shall we?

4) Come here immediately, will you?

Em relação ao estudo dos adjetivos, faça um quadro sinótico do comparativo e do superlativo de superioridade.

Exemplificando:

tall taller than the tallest intelligent more intelligent than the most intelligent Exception: shy shyer than the shyest

Destaque também os outros adjetivos que são exceções, como: good, bad, far etc.

Em relação aos textos, procure sempre fazer um warm-up, destacando novos vocábulos, ou até mesmo falando sobre o assunto que vai ser abordado.

Neste caderno o professor encontrará algumas maneiras ensinar o vocabulário, quer seja por meio de colunas, quer por traduções, ou até mesmo procurando a palavra em Inglês no texto.

Os exercícios propostos também são bem diversificados, com testes de múltipla escolha, perguntas para responder em português ou questões para colocar verdadeiro ou falso.

O caderno apresenta textos extraídos de jornais, revista até mesmo da Internet, visando sempre a motivar o aluno a aprender novas expressões, por meio de contextos interessantes e sugestivos.

Enfatizar sempre o New Vocabulary.

Destacar sempre os False Cognates.

Procurar fazer e corrigir os exercícios na mesma aula.

Recomendar também o TC (Tarefa de Casa), que foi totalmente refeito, apresentando exercícios de gramática e textos com testes de múltipla escolha.

Esperamos que estas ideias possam ajudá-lo(a) na elaboração e preparação de suas aulas.

Text: Police Kill Man Holding Knife to Woman He Had Wounded

A Brooklyn man was shot and killed by the police last night as he held a knife to the throat of a woman inside an East Flatbush apartment, the authorities said.

The woman, who had already been stabbed at least once before the police arrived on the scene, was listed in stable condition last night at Kings County Hospital Center, the authorities said.

They would not identify the woman and the man, but neighbors said both were in their 20's.

The police said that the man was arrested on Saturday on charges that he violated an order of protection that had been obtained by the woman.

Four officers went to the Vanderveer Houses, a public housing complex on New York Avenue where the woman lived, about 8:30 p.m. last night, after the police received an anonymous 911 call from someone describing screams coming from the woman's fifth-floor apartment, according to investigators at the scene.

When the officers approached the apartment, the woman opened the front door and screamed for help, the investigators said. But the man pulled her back inside and immediately shut the door, according to the police.

The police responded by kicking the door open. The man was holding a knife to the woman's throat, and she was already bloody from a stab wound, the authorities said.

After the man ignored several warnings to put down his knife, one of the officers fired a shot, striking the man in the head, the police said. He was declared dead at the scene.

Text: A Stunning Senior Moment

found on the net by Cécile Marit, Belgium

A self-important college freshman walking along the beach took it upon himself to explain to a senior citizen resting on the steps why it was impossible for the older generation to understand his generation.

"You grew up in a different world, actually, an almost primitive one", the student said loud enough for others to hear. "The young people of today grew up with television, jet planes, space travel, man walking on the moon. We have nuclear energy, ships and cell phones, computers with light speed ... and many more".

After a brief silence, the senior citizen responded as follows:

"You're right son, we didn't have those things when we were young ... so we invented them. Now, you arrogant little sh*t what are you doing for the next generation?"

The applause was amazing!

In the USA you can lose custody over your children if you don't watch enough popular television. That, at least, is the logical conclusion to draw from the actions of officials as regards the Ratte family. Christopher Ratte took his son, Leo, to a baseball game where he bought the seven-year-old a bottle of 'Mike's Hard Lemonade'.

Now any 'normal' American knows that Mike's Hard Lemonade is 'alcopop' – it contains 5% alcohol. Christopher's ignorance of the existence of alcoholic lemonade can be explained by the fact that he is Professor of Classical Archaeology at the University of Michigan, so he doesn't watch much commercial TV. No excuse, according to the authorities. A security guard spotted the boy with the drink in his hand and handed Christopher over to the Detroit police. Despite showing no signs of drunkenness, Leo was rushed to the Detroit Children's Hospital by ambulance! At the ER no trace of alcohol was found in his blood. However, it was two days before Leo's mother, Claire Zimmerman, another archaeology professor at the University of Michigan, was allowed to take the boy home. Nearly a week had to pass before Leo's father, Christopher, was allowed to return to the family home.

Things are little better in Britain where Bob Yeomans, head of St John's Primary School in Walsall (near Birmingham) was recently under investigation to determine if he was a fit person to be in contact with children. The investigation was started when it was discovered that Mr Yeomans had a criminal record. And what was Bob's crime? He failed to renew his fishing licence in 2007.

Fascinating facts about the invention of the Blue Jeans by Levi Strauss in 1873.

The Gold Rush of 1848 attracted many adventurers to California. One of them was a twenty-year-old named Levi Strauss. Strauss had been a draper, or cloth seller, in New York, and he took a few bolts of cloth to sell on the journey west.

In this manner he earned his way, and by the time he reached California, Levi Strauss had sold everything except a roll of canvas. No one wanted clothes made of canvas!

Or did they? It turned out that "up in the diggings," where the miners worked, pants wore out very quickly. So Strauss made some pairs of canvas trousers to sell to miners. More and more miners were coming to Strauss and asking him for a pair of those canvas trousers. Not entirely happy with canvas, Levi started using a new fabric from Genoa, Italy. The weavers there called the fabric "genes". Strauss changed the name to "jeans" and later he called his pants "Levi's". They were popular with cowboys as well as miners.

Today, called Levi's or blue jeans, they are popular with men, women, and children in many countries of the globe.

Text: ... Getting Enough Sleep?

One of the (1) things about growing (2) is that you get to stay up (3). And it's not just your parents who make that decision. Your body gives you permission to enjoy the (4) hours too. Recent research has shown that brain changes during teen years make it (5) for kids to stay up late.

But just because you can stay up late, doesn't mean you should, scientists say. Young people who don't get enough sleep are often late for school, or they miss it completely, says a recent study by the National Sleep Foundation (NSF). Sleepy kids tend to be bad-tempered and unhappy. And their grades suffer.

Our sleep-wake schedules may seem to be ruled by the need to get to school or work on time, but they're really under the control of our body's internal clock. Every mammal has a "master clock" in its brain that tells its body what time it is and when it needs to sleep. Scientists recently discovered cells in the brain that collect information about light directly from the eyes. When light comes in, the clock thinks that it's daytime. Then, as darkness arrives, the body secretes a chemical called melatonin, which tells the clock that it's nighttime. As we approach our teen years, melatonin secretion comes at a later time. That's why children who usually go to bed at 8:30 or 9 p.m. all of a sudden start having trouble falling asleep.

Text: Clearing the Roads

The streets of London are rocking – or at least rolling – again. Last week the traffic-clogged metropolis began demanding a £5 ($ 8) congestion charge from all daytime motorists entering the busiest areas of the city. The result: a drop of nearly 25 percent in traffic.

The decongestant scheme employs some 700 cameras. Any driver who enters the zone – a patch of around eight square miles – between 7a.m. and 6:30 p.m. has until 10 p.m. that same day to pay the charge. (You can pay by telephone, over the Internet or in certain shops. Season passes are also available.) The cameras check the registration plate of every car against the payment records, and failure to cough up the cash lands one an £80 fine. The extra revenue from the charge and fines, estimated at up to £150 million a year, will go toward the improvement of public transport.

The idea is catching on. In Britain alone, at least 30 other towns and cities are contemplating the tactic. Similar setups are already in operation in Singapore and Norway. But although all flowed smoothly last week, questions remain. Will the decrease in traffic hurt local businesses? Will traffic jams start up outside the zone? For now, all that's certain is that the 15,000-plus Londoners who've already been fined will be the unhappiest new *straphangers come Monday.

Having married his fourth wife in January, Zuma is now reportedly preparing to wed a fifth, and negotiating a bride price with lucky lady N.º 6 — a situation that's sparking controversy in a country struggling to seem modern.

Polygamy, which is legal in South Africa, remains common in tribally controlled areas, and it's one way the traditionalist Zuma distinguishes himself from his urbane, English-educated predecessor, Thabo Mbeki. George had stolen some money, but the police had caught him and he had been put in prison. Now his trial was about to begin, and he felt sure that he would be found guilty and sent to prison for a long time.

Then he discovered that an old friend of his was one of the members of the jury at his trial. Of course, he didn't tell anybody, but he managed to see his friend secretly one day. He said to him, "Jim, I know that the jury will find me guilty of having stolen the money. I cannot hope to be found not guilty of taking it – that would be too much to expect. But I should be grateful to you for the rest of my life if you could persuade the other members of the jury to add a strong recommendation for mercy to their statement that they consider me guilty."

"Well, George," answered Jim, "I shall certainly try to do what I can for you as an old friend, but of course I cannot promise anything. The other eleven people on the jury look terribly strong-minded to me."

George said that he would quite understand if Jim was not able to do anything for him, and thanked him warmly for agreeing to help.

The trial went on, and at last the time came for the jury to decide whether George was guilty or not. It took them five hours, but in the end they found George guilty, with a strong recommendation for mercy.

Of course, George was very pleased, but he didn't have a chance to see Jim for some time after the trial. At last, however, Jim visited him in prison, and George thanked him warmly and asked him how he had managed to persuade the other members of the jury to recommend mercy.

"Well, George," Jim answered, "as I thought, those eleven men were very difficult to persuade, but I managed it in the end by tiring them out. Do you know, those fools had all wanted to find you not guilty!"

Acupuncture and herbs aid in Chinese weight loss

1 Twelve-year-old Mathew Feldman had tried all: low-carb diets, pills, Weight Watchers. "Nothing worked," says the New Yorker, who at 1.6 meters tipped the scales at 87 kilograms. "No matter what I did, I always gained and gained." Until now. After three weeks on an innovative Chinese weight-loss program, Feldman is down to 76 kilos. Suddenly, his goal of 59 seems within reach.

5 What's the miracle cure? A unique regimen of exercise, acupuncture and Chinese herbs. Feldman is among several foreign students spending the summer – along with 190 Chinese – at Aimin Weight-Loss Clinic in Tianjin, about two hours south of Beijing. The need for such centers in China is growing rapidly, as middle-class citizens consume an increasingly fatty diet and lead increasingly sedentary lifestyles.

10 Aimin's basic approach to weight loss isn't radically different from Western regimes: less eating, more exercise. But it varies in the details. While Western professionals advise against rapid weight loss, at Aimin it is encouraged.

You've Been Streetviewd

"Since Google launched its Streetview service two years ago it has come under a lot of criticism for invading people's privacy. Streetview's software is meant to obliterate people's faces but often those that were in the street when Streetview cars passed are still identifiable. For example, one Englishman – recognizable to his friends – was snapped throwing up outside a pub.

Anyway, for once there is a case in which Streetview has unquestionably done good. In 2008 a Dutch 14-year-old in the city of Groningen was dragged off his bicycle by two men and robbed of €140 and his mobile phone. Recently, the teenager was browsing Streetview and was amazed to see that the Google service had captured the incident on camera. He went to the local police. They asked Google Streetview for the original image and used this to arrest two brothers for the robbery.

TV addiction

The amount of time people spend watching television is astonishing. On average, individuals in the industrialized world devote three hours a day to the pursuit – fully half of their leisure time, and more than on any single activity save work and sleep. At this rate, someone who lives to 75 would spend nine years in front of the tube. To some commentators, this devotion means simply that people enjoy TV and make a conscious decision to watch it. But if that is the whole story, why do so many people experience misgivings about how much they view?
